PGST Registered Persons to Display PGST Inclusive Price
by May 30, 2023

On April 20, 2023, the Bureau of Revenue & Taxation issued a public notice to all PGST registered businesses and establishments requiring displaying PGST inclusive prices on prices shown to the public by May 30, 2023.

Over the past few months, the Bureau has actively engaged with PGST-registered individuals through various means such as notices, consultations, workshops, and media platforms. These efforts aimed to remind PGST-registered businesses and establishments about the importance of displaying prices that already include PGST.

The display of the PGST inclusive price means that PGST has already been added to the original price and that the amount displayed is the final cost or price you will pay for. This ensures transparency and that the consumer is aware of the final cost or price they will pay upon purchase.

The Bureau commends businesses and establishments for their proactive measures in adhering to the requirement of displaying PGST-inclusive pricing to the public. By doing so, they not only fulfill the objectives of the tax regime but also contribute to building a transparent tax system.

We also want to express our gratitude to the public for their ongoing support and initiative in sharing vital information, which assists us in ensuring taxpayer compliance. As we implement this mandate, we request your continued cooperation and engagement.
